SHADOW OVER WESTONGROVE MANOR

Each game booklet contains an illustration for the respective character as well as a detailed role description. We recommend that you hand out the booklets to your guests two to three days before the game, so that everyone can prepare in time. You can use your support code to easily download all role descriptions and email them to your guests.

No one has to dress up to participate in the game, but it's much more fun. Your guests can let their imagination run wild with their costumes if they want to.

EMILY SANDERS (31)

Sebastian's girlfriend knows what she looks like. She skilfully sets the scene with a modern cocktail dress. This could be based on Chanel's famous "Little Black Dress".

EMMA BRAMLEY (39)

We imagined Emma as the "classic" domestic servant of former times: She could wear black clothes and a white apron. A feather duster or a cooking spoon goes well with this.

CATHERINE BINKS (33)

For Catherine, there are two possibilities: She could wear an elegant evening dress or a white doctor's coat and a stethoscope around her neck.

JONATHAN BINKS (37)

Jonas would appear a bit "underdressed" when compared, e.g. in a worn cord jacket and jeans. He could bring the book "Capital" by Karl Marx.

RICHARD MARSHALL (29)

We thought of Richard as some kind of young Steve Jobs. He could wear blue jeans, a black turtleneck sweater and round glasses.

HAROLD STORROW (57)

The somewhat odd gardener could wear green or blue dungarees – it should be workwear in any case. He has a pair of garden shears or a shovel with him.

ANTHONY
WESTONGROVE (70)

The host of the evening wears a timeless, elegant suit. A pocket watch or a thick cigar would go well with this.

SEBASTIAN
WESTONGROVE (36)

Sebastian's tailor-made suit fits perfectly and his hair is accurately shaped with gel. He carries a matching leather briefcase.
