

CULINARIO
MORTALE®

DEADLY FAME

Each game booklet contains an illustration for the respective character as well as a detailed role description. We recommend that you hand out the booklets to your guests two to three days before the game, so that everyone can prepare in time. You can use your support code to easily download all role descriptions and email them to your guests.

No one has to dress up to participate in the game, but it's much more fun. Your guests can let their imagination run wild with their costumes if they want to.

PAUL HOPKINS (49)

He is a real artist and dresses accordingly. As an outfit he could wear a black turtleneck sweater, a silk scarf and eccentric glasses together with a megaphone.

PATRICK BRADSHAW (34)

He plays the role of Romeo. He could wear a matching Renaissance costume, for example:

IRINA IVANOVA (22)

The beautiful young actress has no role of her own in Romeo & Juliet. She wears a figure-hugging, noble cocktail dress. She wants to attract everyone's attention with her looks.

DANIEL HENDERSON (24)

He plays the role of Mercutio. Like Patrick, he could wear a Renaissance costume, for example:

RONALD AMBROSE (50)

He doesn't care much about appearances. In his work as a stage manager, the clothes must be practical. He could wear jeans and a flannel shirt.

KATIE REYNOLDS (30)

As for Ronald, it is also a normal working day for Katja. She wears something comfortable, but elegant – probably something she tailors herself, as she designs her own clothes.

MELISSA SILVER (28)

She dresses eccentrically. One could imagine unusual patterns or dresses that could also be seen at a haute couture show in Paris. The main thing is: It should stand out!

RITA STEWART (31)

It is Rita's first premiere as Souffleuse at the Minebury City Theatre. For this she bought herself a new long evening dress. And of course she always has her textbook with her.
